Being an alumnus of Delhi Public School Patiala makes me proud. My time at DPS Patiala has served as a solid basis for both my academic and personal development. My teachers' advice and support gave me the discipline, conceptual clarity, and self-assurance I needed to pursue a career in medicine. Along with academic success, the school environment fostered virtues like tenacity, honesty, and accountability. I am incredibly appreciative of DPS Patiala for moulding my goals and equipping me to handle obstacles in the future. I will always treasure my time in school.

NAMAH MANCHANDA

Class of 2024–2025

AIIMS Rishikesh

Building lifelong habits is more important in school than grades or rankings. I learned how to maintain focus, handle pressure, and have faith in the process even when outcomes take time during my time at Delhi Public School, Patiala. To the students who are currently working toward their objectives: don't be afraid to learn from your mistakes, be persistent, and ask questions. More than anything else, competitive careers like medicine require endurance and patience. Daily small efforts lead to large results. Sincerity, self-belief, and discipline—qualities cultivated during school years—are, in my opinion, the real keys to success. Make the most of your school days because they will have a greater impact on your future than you may think.

AJITESH SINGH BHULLAR

Class of 2024–2025

During my time in school, the institution's sense of direction was the most notable aspect. Everything, from daily discipline to academic planning, was organized in a way that promoted seriousness about learning without putting undue strain on students. High academic standards were continuously upheld at Delhi Public School, Patiala, while making sure that students received assistance at every stage. Growth was slow but steady because of the focus on fundamentals, frequent evaluations, and teacher accessibility. Later on, this method made it easier for students to adjust to demanding academic environments.

In retrospect, the trip felt well-planned rather than hurried. Excellence was regarded as a habit rather than an exception, there was a distinct academic rhythm, and expectations were set early. Delhi Public School, Patiala fostered an environment where students were quietly prepared for lofty objectives, effort was acknowledged, and standards were maintained. I am currently pursuing a B.Tech at IIT Bombay, and it is simple to link that preparedness to the school's dedicated mentorship and consistent academic culture.

AKSHAT JAIN
Class of 2024–2025

While some educational institutions use expectations, others use structure. By subtly establishing high standards and providing students with the opportunity to meet them, the school integrated both. Teachers prioritized long-term development over immediate results, assessments rewarded comprehension, and classrooms promoted depth over speed. The academic culture at Delhi Public School, Patiala was one of consistency leading to confidence over time.

HARSH THAPAR
Class of 2024–2025
IIT Ropar
Bachelor of Technology

Certain lessons are imparted quietly through consistency, routine, and expectations. Growth was viewed as a slow process rather than a race, effort was respected, and preparation was taken seriously at school. With each year that went by, students at Delhi Public School in Patiala learned to take ownership of their education and set higher goals.

That environment has an impact that goes well beyond school life. Goals and challenges are still shaped by the discipline, clarity, and work ethic that were formed there.

AYUSH KAURA
Class of 2024–2025

AIIMS Mohali

Certain environments leave their mark through momentum rather than moments. Days had a consistent academic rhythm, with less emphasis on pressure and more on purpose. Expectations subtly shaped ambition, routines promoted discipline, and teachers stressed clarity. Students were taught to value preparation and perseverance at Delhi Public School, Patiala.

Beyond the school years, this consistent grounding continues to impact how obstacles are tackled and objectives are pursued.

Clear expectations. Consistent standards. Measurable progress. The academic system emphasized discipline, conceptual clarity, and sustained effort over short-term outcomes. Delhi Public School, Patiala delivered an environment where preparation was methodical and results followed naturally.

That foundation continues to support academic and professional growth beyond school.

INDERPREET SINGH
Class of 2024–2025

Delhi Public School, Patiala functioned less as a routine academic space and more as a system designed for long-term preparedness. What remained constant throughout the years was the seriousness attached to learning. Expectations were communicated early, standards were maintained without dilution, and progress was treated as a responsibility shared by both teachers and students

I joined Delhi Public School Patiala in 2022, entering in the 11th grade. The 11th and 12th grades are pivotal years in a student's life, shaping their future. Reflecting back on my journey in this school since joining in 2022 till the last of those happy days in 2024, what I've gained from this institution is something that can't even be summarised. This place has revealed to me a new version of myself, which is way more open connecting to others, has less to hesitate, and is frank, and this all got possible because of the kind of interactions I had with my mentors, In fact, not just me but each and every one of my mates. Apart from personality development, the other thing that we got were opportunities to showcase our talents, which were not just related to study but anything, which became the reason for me to identify something hidden deep within me, unrefined and crude, which is now my hobby.

Other than this, I have grasped so much from this institution that I can't even elaborate on it.

When I joined DPS Patiala in 2017, I had many reservations about my journey here since I was new to the city. However, the positive environment of the school and warmth of the faculty made me feel very comfortable and within a few days, DPS became a second home. It gave me the much needed exposure as a student. I participated in declamation and extempore competitions, improved my art skills and also took great interest in performing arts like dance. I even got the chance to anchor one of the annual functions. All these activities have transformed me into a confident personality today. My time at DPS Patiala gave me an opportunity to dream of studying law. Today, as I achieve this dream sitting in the classroom of National Law University Delhi, I still remember the girl who entered the gates of DPS Patiala few years back with a zeal in her eyes and little did she know that this school was just the right institution to turn her dreams into reality.

My school, DPS Patiala, instilled a passion for learning, encouraging me to explore a wide range of subjects and disciplines. Beyond academics, my school offered a diverse range of extracurricular activities, enabling me to explore my interests and talents beyond the classroom. I learnt the value of teamwork, communication, and leadership. Participating in leadership roles within these extracurricular activities allowed me to develop strong decision-making abilities, conflict resolution skills, and the capacity to motivate and inspire others.
